THE ANNUAL LEON STERNDALE
INVITED ADDRESS

to be delivered by

P. J. SULLIVAN

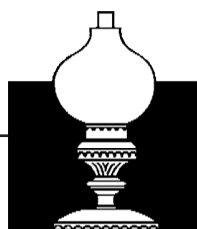

on the subject of

"A BAKER STREET
SITTING ROOM"

WITH PHOTOGRAPHS AND EXAMPLES

What strange circumstances led to the murderous attack on Victor Hatherly, and his bizarre injury? Who were the beautiful woman, the sinister German, and the morose Englishman? Why was the unconscious Hatherly carried to safety? And how did the description of a horse, glimpsed by lamplight, help Sherlock Holmes find the mysterious house in the Eyford countryside?

Imagine what it would be like to relax in your own Baker Street sitting room. So many Sherlockians have pursued it that the Baker Street Builders was formed, a scion society for people who replicate the 221B scene in their homes. Join fellow Horror P.J. Sullivan, a member of the Builders, as she shares and shows the details of her recreation of Holmes and Watson's rooms.
